GAO Report Raises Some Concerns About Regulation of Retirement Communities

A report by the Government Accountability Office warns that given the weak economy, Continuing Care Retirement Communities (CCRCs) are facing challenging times. The ability of many CCRC residents to support themselves is inextricably tied to the financial health of their CCRC. While few CCRCs have gone under so far, states vary in how much they help ensure that CCRCs stay solvent or don't sharply raise monthly fees on residents.
